To Whom?

[On shipboard] The writer tells about the weather, the food, and the people she met on a ship going to Europe. Met a young man named Palmer who said that Anti-Slavery sentiment had increased greatly in Chicago. Reminisces about the organiza- of the Anti-Slavery society in that city, and the hiring of Oliver Johnson as an editor of the National Anti-Slavery Standard. Quotes Harriet Martineau on the definition of genius.

No.38

«Afloat» Tells about the first part of his trip across the Atlantic. Rev. R. C. Waterston was to have made "the parting address" on the wharf in Boston, but could not because of the confusion caused by heavy rain. Rev. R. C. W. told him that the National Testimonial had reached $30,000. Refers to G. Thompson, who traveled with him. Mrs. Brigham sent him a bouquet of flowers. Names those who came to see him off. Mrs. Mary Ann Johnson must be careful of her health. Mrs. G. will see Charlotte Coffin soon. Julia Randall's father died. Urges the addressee to continue Miss Andrews's treatment. Wants the newspaper notices of his departure sent to him.

«At Sea, Thursday ...» Is now within twenty hours' sail of Queenstown. "For twelve hundred miles we were enveloped in a dense and disagreeable fog ... But there was no abatement of our own speed. On we rushed, with a full head of steam and all sails set ..." Nothing was done to warm the saloons. Describes the passengers, among whom is Bishop Payne of Wilberforce University. Criticises the behavior of Rev. Dr. Lothrop. Names other individuals on board. Says that there is "far less wine drunk at the table than I have ever known before ... The chief employment on board is eating and drinking ..." G. Thompson has not been seasick. Praises J. Ritchie for enabling G. T. to [illegible] home. Gives his itinerary and instructs W. L. No.39

«Liberia» Says that he "is considered dangerous to the successful operation of the «American Colonization?» society." Tells of an attempt by a local official to compel the writer to dissolve his partnership with one R[usswurm]?. If the Colonization Society continues to pour in immigrants at the usual rate, great suffering will result. There is a great deal of sickness already. The Society is very hostile to him. "I do « ? » assure you that there are a great many contemptible scoundrels here." The writer will leave Liberia in the Spring.

To Robert Purvis No.57,58

«Liberia» Is thrilled by the revolution in interracial relations, and marvels at the sudden progress toward civil rights for colored people. Discusses entries in an account sent by R. P. Criticises one Russwurm's conduct of the Herald (a local newspaper?). Describes the ruler of Liberia as a libertine. The Colonization Society has cut off his income. Is sending a box containing the bones of an orangutan and a box of insects for Dr. McMurtrie. Will send native curios. Mentions Americans who have died. "This country is peculiarly hard on white as well as col'd people ..." Sends messages to the Purvis family. The ship William Thompson has just arrived from Virginia with a carg[illegible] provisions.

«Monrovia, (Liberia)» Is deeply gratified at receiving a letter from J. C. Is happy to hear that he has moved to Philadelphia and much surprised to learn of the change in public sentiment toward the colored people. Refers to the "late riots." Mentions his poor health. "... the climate is pestilential." Food is scarce and high-priced in Liberia. With slave labor, it might be possible to cultivate coffee and sugar cane successfully, but not much could be done with free labor. Expects to return to the U.S. shortly.

Nippur. Antiquities. 2350 B.C.

[Babylonian tablets. No. 1, 7, 8.] Cab.G.3.137

[Nippur, etc. 2350 B.C.?] 3 tablets. Sizes, 2 × 1⅜, 2 × 1¾, 1¾ × 1⅝ inches.

These Babylonian tablets are described as follows by Dr. Edgar J. Banks in a letter written April 14, 1928, a copy of which is on file in the Ordering Department:

No. 1. Found at Nippur. A burned tablet, larger than the average. The inscription is a record of the receipt of animals delivered to the temple to be offered to the various gods. 1 lamb for the god Bel, 1 lamb for the goddess Belit, delivered by . . . 1 fat sheep and 2 lambs for Bel, 1 fat sheep and 2 lambs for Belit, 1 fat sheep for Ishtar, 1 fat sheep and 1 lamb for the god

Nusku?, 1 fat sheep for the goddess Ninharsag, (over) 1 fat sheep and 1 lamb for the god Shulpauaau, 1 fat lamb for the god . . . etc., on the 20th day of the month. The tablet is dated in the last two lines about 2350 B.C., early in the Ur dynasty of Kings who ruled from about 2400 to 2100 B.C.

No. 7. Found at Jokha. A contract for a large quantity of grain? delivered on the last day of the month. After the tablet was written, and while the clay was still soft, the scribe rolled over the entire tablet his cylindrical stone seal, and the seal impression made it impossible to change the record. The seal impression bears in raised characters the name of the scribe, Luela, and of his father, the seated figure of a deity and the standing figure of a priest. The tablet is dated in the year when a certain city was overthrown,

Holy journey made by the Tycoon or Shogun from Tokio to Nikko.
[Japan, n.d.] 8v.

Each of these vols. is composed of a continuous sheet of paper, on which are represented sketches made and colored by hand, forming a panorama of the road and its surroundings from Tokio to Nikko. With the exception of the houses and trees, these scenes give a tolerable idea of the appearance of the region. At intervals are to be noticed circular pieces of gilt. The largest signifies the place where the Tycoon spent the night, the next in size where he took his principal meal, and the smallest, where his less important meal.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Mount Pleasant, near Woburn, Bedfordshire, England. The writer encloses several contributions for the Liberty Bell in response to a note transmitted by Richard D. Webb of Dublin. The writer asked for contributions from several people, all of whom responded. Not having received the copy sent him, he does not know if the Liberty Bell is limited to the subject of slavery. Advocates the value of "the peaceful amenities of literature."

A.L.S. 3 p. 9 x 5 5/8 in.

In a postscript the writer says that he heard the American Abolitionists praised in Spain by Antonio Bengnes de las Casas of Barcelona, husband [illegible] descendant of Bartolomé de las Casas, friend of the Caribbean Indians.

Following this postscript is a list of the pieces sent.

Bayly, Thomas Haynes, 1797-1839; English poet and miscellaneous writer.

To Mackinlay.

[Written from Bath ?] Does not intend that Goulding and Co. shall be asked to pay twice for poems already paid for, but referred in his letter to poems intended for publication with music. Cites Moore's dealings with Powers as being a like circumstance. Is unwilling to relinquish his rights if that means that his songs will be printed in magazines, the Blackwood alone being of a standard high enough to meet his requirements. Alludes to the gift of a bracelet to Mrs. Bayly for which he intends to pay with a song. Will talk of the matter of aut[illegible] rights with his friends, Rogers, Hook and Luttrell[illegible].L.S. 5p. 9 x 7 3/4 in.

To «Anne Warren Weston?»

«Ben Rhydding» The writer met Mrs. Chapman and her party in London, attended the last sitting of the Peace Congress and visited the great Exhibition. Visiting in Bristol, she became acquainted with the Estlins. On returning to relatives, the writer found a cousin very ill and stayed with her. The writer's health being affected by the prolonged stay in a southern climate during the hot season, she resorted to this "fountain of health." The Estlins are working hard for the cause, and Mrs. Massman's advocacy in London has doubtless "interested many & done much to open the eyes of others to the degree of confidence that ought to be placed in the Broad St. Committee." The writer maintai[illegible]t in Scotland they have more knowledge and "a strong fee[illegible]g exists in favour of the true

Abolitionists." The writer was disappointed that before she reached London, Mrs. E. L. Follen had left the country. Was delighted to meet George Thompson. Sends a message to Wendell and Ann Phillips, whom she hopes to see in this country. The writer read Phillips's speech on Kossuth in America "with perfect delight." Describes Mazzini, with whom the writer spent an evening. "I cannot think he would have acted as Kossuth has regarding American Slavery." Remarks on H. C. Wright's physical strength, and hopes Garrison's health is better. Comments on the political situation in Europe. "We hear much of the probability of a Fre[illegible] invasion & the necessity for being prepared. «Birmingham, Engl.» The writer introduces herself as an admirer of the addressee. "We too have been the victims of persecution ... we also have had our meetings broken up by mobs ..." (in the Chartist movement). As a Sunday school teacher, the writer "read aloud the admirable conduct of yourself and the females who acted with you," winning eager response. Praises Miss Prudence Crandall. The writer is proud to name as a townsman Joseph Sturge, "an eminent corn-merchant ... at present endeavoring to better the condition of the miserable toiling millions in this country." Incloses a Nonconformist.

:Old Mearn(?)Mill, Birmingham, Engl.: Acknowledges the addressee's letters and reports. The writer, surrounded by poverty and misery, has "ardently assisted" the advocates of a law against the employment of women in coal mines, "and the legislature was postively dunned with petitions signed by 'women of Birmingham' on the subject." The best friend in the struggle for various reforms is the press. The writer disagrees with the addressee's censorious view of Joseph Sturge; thinks "his heart to be the seat of every virtue," his only apparent fault being "that he is too conciliatory – too mildly good." The writer [illegible]earses "the fate of poor Ireland", the rick burning in a[illegible]ltural districts of England, the strikes, etc.

:Edgbaston?: The writer reports that "the concluding part of the Memorials :in the Autobiography of Harriet Martineau: is in the hands of our English printers." Mentions some details of proof reading and dealings with Smith, Elder & Co. The writer explains the reason for striking out "pro-slavery tendencies" in one passage,-there was no justification for attributing pro-Slavery tendencies to the leaders of the Free Trade movement. "If it is not too late can you alter the passage in the American Edition?" The writer refrains from requesting an alteration of the "painful passage" in the book. «Bolton, England» The writer has forwarded, through Rebecca Whitelegge of Manchester, the subscription from Bolton to the Boston Anti-Slavery fund. Regrets that they were not able to do much in Manchester this year. Requests more than one copy of the paper containing a report of the annual meeting and the list of subscribers. Bolton has done pretty well, considering the many adverse opinions to be met with respecting the Anti-Slavery movement. Sarah P. Remond, lecturing at Bolton "gave great satisfaction." The writer became acquainted with her, as she spent a night "under our humble roof."

«Riverside (Bridgwater,England)» Seven boxes have been sent from the inhabitants of Bridgwater for the Boston A.S.Bazaar. The contributions have mostly been prepared since "and indeed in consequence of" the visit of Frederick Douglass, who lectured in Bridgwater. "At his suggestion, we are sending a letter from our town to Bridgwater in America." Douglass visited the writer's minister Mr. Russell Carpenter, and was also at her father's house. He left behind "warm feelings of friendship."

A pamphlet entitled Extracts from the Proceedings of Convention "from Mr. Maddison's papers," seemed clearly to prove to the writer that Gov. MacDuffie's statement that Slavery is the cornerstone of the Union, was right. The writer has been studying the early history of the Anti-Slavery movement. Praises the courage of the addressee and her Anti-Slavery friends. Received the Pennsylvania Freeman and is glad to note that W. Phillips and E. Quincy understand the difference between European and American tyranny. Thinks that the slaves are worse off than the Pole[illegible]d the Hungarians. The writer's society will not merge with the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. Thinks that Joseph Sturge is "making up with George Thompson." The London Times is gradually coming around to the right view of Slavery. The writer discusses internal dissension among the Abolitionists, mentioning particularly the case of F. Douglass. Mrs. H. B. Stowe's letter to the Glasgow Abolitionists mentioned the Temperance cause. Blames the English churches for not preaching strongly against drunkenness. Holds it to be inconsistent to attack slavery in the U. S. and overlook intemperance in England. Holds Mazzini to be more co[illegible]istent in his actions than Kossuth. Says that the Anti-[illegible]ry movement brings together people of all religious den[illegible]ations. "Have you seen Miss Bremer's book on America? .Bridgewater, England. The writer remarks on a letter in the Liberator(No.1052) which blamed Parker Pillsbury for not attacking the oppression of the English people by their government. Says that there is little reason for complaint. Compares English and American ideas of freedom. Says many noblemen favor Abolition. Remarks on a letter in the New York Times from the Hon. Henry A. Wise which defended Slavery as a divine institution. Comments caustically on the editor's opinion that "there may be reasons why some races of men should pass through a state of bondage." Praises the revised form of the National Anti-Slavery Standard.

[Bridgewater, England] The writer expresses great pleasure at the opposition to Judge Edward Greely Loring. Discusses the predicament of those who vote under the Constitution while favoring Abolition of Slavery. Says he is inclined to be more lenient in judging George Thompson's conduct at the London Conference of the British & For. Anti-Slavery Soc'y. Thinks Rev. May overestimates the influence of this Society. Defends the New Broad Street Committee and L. A. Chameroozow. Advises keeping an agent in England. Says Parker Pillsbury has done a lot of good, but is not fitted to be the English agent. Describes Chamerooz[illegible] Tells of seeing the Estlins, Rev. [Kingsdown, Bristol, England] The writer is sending the Address on Slavery from the English Unitarian clergy to the American Unitarian clergy by James Cannings Fuller. He comments on the fact that some of the English ministers did not sign the Address because of unfamiliarity with the subject or unwillingness to act as admonishers. Suggests a continuing correspondence which could be published occasionally in church periodicals. Proposes a union of the American and English Unitarian churches. Mentions the volume of Mr.Artois' sermons which he is bringing out.

Speaks specifically of Mr. Martineau's unwillingness to sign because he could not share in the burden of unpopularity which would be the lot of the Unitarian Abolitionists. The writer is waiting for an answer to the Address.

The writer also tells of the struggle against the Chapel Bill and the activities of Joseph Barker among the poor people in northern England.

Tells of the residences and professions of her three brothers. Having read the National Anti-Slavery Standard with interest, the writer regrets "that there are so many divisions among the Abolitionists." Remarks that Garrison "seems to me to mistake what was the position of the Dissenters before the repeal of the Test & Corporation Act." Explains the true facts. Refers to the persecution of Abolitionists in America and the [illegible] fortune of colored people in England.

.Bristol, England. The writer was much interested in the Anti-Slavery Fair. Thinks that letters should be published anonymously in the Abolition periodicals unless the author permits the use of his or her name. A handbill stating the the exact purposes of the Fair should be printed. Many English people don't know what the proceeds are used for. They also think that American slaves are very happy. The writer has been studying the history of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Soc'y. Discusses the case of Mr. Sargent and Mr. Parker. Says Miss Martineau's recovery has been aided by mesmerism, but regrets her attitude toward it. He[illegible]ntal powers have been . . . impaired. A long discussion [illegible]smerism follows. Ends letter by asking a number of quest[illegible] on Anti-Slavery matters.

[Bristol, England] The writer complains of the lack of forbearance among the Abolitionists. There is too much division of opinion. Can understand the reluctance of the Unitarian ministers to join the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Garrison and his group are too violent and intolerant. The American clergy should be encouraged to do something instead of being abused for having their own ideas. Reports conversations with Parkman, Coleman, Simmons, and Martineau. Mentions the improvement in the condition of th[illegible]t Indian negroes, the style of the Liberator, Oberlin I[illegible]tute, books from America, death penalty for teaching negroes, the Protest, and a letter from a freed West Indian slave.

To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

«Bristol, England» The writer acknowledges the receipt of the Southern newspapers. Says that Elihu Burritt called on him and made a long speech about his Peace Pledge. Asks about Rev. May's resignation from his Church. Reports that the meeting called to form a society auxiliary to the A-S League was very successful. Douglass' speech was very good. ‹Bristol, England› The writer says contributions to the Fair are being produced in quantity. Will send 100 copies of the Brief Notice to the Fair. Has had his name printed on the cover. Says the Christian Reformer has started publishing Anti-Slavery articles. Condemns Garrison's meddling in English political affairs. Says Abolition is only for the upper classes. Gives an example of a very impolitic remark made by W.L.G. Condemns his association with Henry Vincent. Says Douglass is doing very well. The English Quakers are opposed to Garrison. Mentions the stranding of the S.S. Great Britain. Thinks W.L.G. will de[illegible]p greater sympathy for the Unitarians than for any ot[illegible]lass. Refers to criticism of W.L.G. in the Christian Wit[illegible]s.

To [Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman]

[Bristol, England] The writer is sending an account of G. Thompson's speech in the Bristol Mercury. This contains also a paragraph about the exhibition of the objects for Boston. Adds also the October number of the Christian Reformer containing an article on American slavery, which is "an important evidence of progress in Anti-Slavery sentiment." While the late (Robert) Aspland, former editor of the Christian Reformer, was adverse to the Abolitionists, his son, Brooks Aspland, "is evidently coming around." The writer hopes the Christian Reformer is seen by the Boston Unitarian ministers. Suggests a notice to be ins[illegible] in the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard, for which the wri[illegible]resents as a model, a statement with the superscription: "Progress of Anti-Slavery Sentiment among English Unitarians."

«Bristol, England» Tells of the pleasure derived from preparing "the box" (for Boston). Garrison "has formed strong personal friendships" in Bristol; the writer feels it a great privilege to be reckoned among his friends. In this connection the writer quotes Tasso in Italian. Asks why the addressee does not come to England.

[Bristol, England] The writer remembers the inspiring visit of Dr. (Joseph) Tuckerman and thinks Garrison's visit had a similar effect. "Though many feel as we do about his visit," others "will have been repelled from the Abolitionists by his language... and by his entering on subjects which they think quite foreign to slavery..." The writer discourses on the moral force of Christianity; extols Dr.Channing for showing its bearing on political questions. George Thompson and Elihu Burritt, while orthodox, "showed that there is a common Christianity."

[Bristol, England] The writer repeats his contention that Garrison paid too much attention to English politics. Does not expect speedy success for the A-S League. Douglass is "much wanted in some of the central towns of England." Plans a second edition of the Brief Notice. Tells of a meeting between Joseph Sturge and Garrison. Objects to H.C. Wright's intruding of his views of the Sabbath into A-S work, and James Haughton's failure to concentrate his philanthropic efforts on Abolition. Public opinion censured Haughton's letter about Mrs. Dana. The writer speaks well of R.D. Webb. Webb admitted Douglass was [illegible] to please. Discussing method of acknowledging contribut[illegible] to the Fair. Mentions money gifts.

«Bristol, England» Reports on the forwarding of late donations and the failure to collect a substantial contribution in Liverpool. Microscopic slides have been prepared for the Boston fair by the writer's cousin Augustin Prichard, a surgeon and son of Dr.(James Cowles) Prichard. The writer rejoices that Garrison was able to stay longer than he first planned. "His speech at Newcastle must do much to remove the unfavorable impression entertained of some of his tenets... We still are obliged to fight many battles for him." Friends in Exeter are likely still to contribute to the Boston fair. "It makes all the differenc[illegible]etween zeal & indifference" in the towns where F. Douglas[illegible] Garrison have lectured.

«Park Street, Bristol, Engl.» Encloses some memoranda pertaining to the Bristol box for the Boston fair. Quotes from a letter written by the writer's father to Mrs. Wigham, describing his feeling at parting from Garrison in Liverpool. Mr. (Henry) Clapp seems in great favor with the peace and temperance advocates. Mr. Estlin declined an invitation to meet him at Miss Carpenter's house. The committee for the new League will meet at the writer's house tomorrow. The writer is grieved to learn of Mrs. (Eliza Lee) Follen's poor health; has long loved Mrs.Follen for her published works.
